Profile

Board-certified urologist Matthew Johnson, MD, FACS, has a special interest in robotic surgery and prostate cancer. Along with Peter Leonovicz, MD, he performed Wisconsin's first robotic prostatectomy in 2003. Together they have performed the most robotic prostate surgeries in Wisconsin. As one of the most-experienced robotic surgeons, Dr. Johnson offers each patient a surgical option that can provide less pain, faster recovery and greater possibility of preserving all functions that impact quality of life.

Dr. Johnson's full range of interests includes prostate and bladder cancers, erectile dysfunction, male incontinence and prosthetics. He is using the newest treatments available for those who suffer from all adult urinary-tract disorders. He strives to be sympathetic and compassionate in addressing the individual needs and sensitivities of each patient. He is known to be thorough with each patient and offers a comprehensive approach to each urologic issue.

Dr. Johnson has been a speaker on topics of prostate cancer and erectile dysfunction, and has commented in the media on issues related prostate cancer. He is former chief of surgery at Aurora St. Luke's Medical Center and is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons. (09/12)
